

History of the BSP

A partnership between South Central Michigan Works! and Michigan State University School of Labor & Industrial Relations began in 2006 to create the initial curriculum of the Business Solutions Professional Certification Training. The curriculum developed from a process that had worked successfully for years in the South Central Michigan Works! Region.

The instructors created a curriculum that could be duplicated in any locality. The partnership works as a team and meets regularly to discuss curriculum development and changes.

Adjustments to the curriculum have been made based on feedback from former and current students in order to tailor to the needs of the businesses and communities they work with.

As we move forward and learn from our students, communities and business leaders, the training remains flexible to keep current with the changing business environment.
